Resolutions or bills: None.

Reports, recommendations, and other business from standing/select committees of City Council: None.

Report of city officials: None.

Bills on third reading: None.

Bills on second reading: None.

Public comment: Debbie Beemon, Walnut Street, wanted to make the council aware of the state of the abandoned houses in her neighborhood, especially 709 Walnut Street. She mentions how unsafe the structures are for children and the community in general and how overtaken they can get by the homeless population.

Mayor's comments: June 2023 was an extremely busy and successful month for the city in many ways. Mayor Courtney would also like to encourage the community and the council to go to the City of Madison website and look at all of the content that is available there. There is a lot of information regarding the projects that are being worked on and where they are taking place. The Crystal each Project webcam is also live now where the community can view the progress of the project in real time. Regatta 2023 was an extremely successful event. The city's estimates were that there were about 20,000 people on the riverfront plus their children for the fireworks show on Saturday night. There were about 8,000 lining Main Street for the parade plus their children on Friday night. The mayor thanked everyone involved in the 2023 Regatta events that took place over the weekend, including the Regatta committee, staff, businesses, race crews, public safety, law enforcement, and the community. The city is currently reviewing the data prepared by the Army Corps of Engineers.

There will be announcements made regarding that information soon as it is a very complicated data-oriented analysis of the Crooked Creek Watershed. This will bring some solutions to the community for flooding in that corridor.

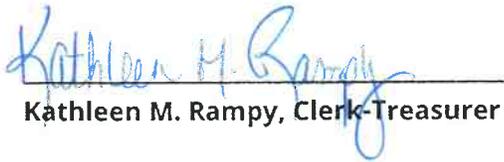

The next regular meeting will be Tuesday, July 18, 2023, @ 5:30 pm.

Adjourn: Krebs moved to adjourn, seconded by Schafer. All in favor (6-0).
